

STATE SEEKS TO HANG DRAKE HOTEL ROBBERS

JAIL, FINES, PENALTY FOR TWO YOUTHS

Emmett and Fred Kelly Given Severe Punish- ment by Co. Judge

Emmett and Fred Kelly, brothers and farmers of Hamilton township, alleged to have been highly intoxicated and driving a Ford, roadster at a wild rate of speed, crashed into a Ford touring car in which Mr. and Mrs. Lennes Hoff of this city were driving, at the north approach to the Galena avenue bridge shortly after 7 o'clock last evening, injuring all of the parties. The Kelly brothers, who today claimed they were on their way to Freeport, were driving on the wrong side of the bridge, witnesses stated, and in leaving the bridge in the heavy traffic were unable to get back into the line and crashed headon into the Hoff car, practically demolishing both machines.

Fred Kelly, the elder of the two brothers, were thrown through the windshield and alighted on his head on the pavement. He was badly cut and bruised about the face and head, but left the scene and entered a house on Boyd street where he terrorized a family. He was arrested in the vicinity of the house a short time later by members of the police department and taken to the police station where he was given medical attention.

Driver Was Arrested
Emmett Kelly, who was driving the car, the younger of the two, was arrested by Deputies William Rose and August Frazz and taken to the county jail. Two bottles of liquor were alleged to have been found in the Kelly car.

Mrs. Nellie Hoff was out about the face and received several bruises as the car containing the two alleged intoxicated men crashed into them, looking both machines at the north approach of the bridge and tying up traffic in both directions which required the services of both police and deputies some time to clear.

Mrs. Hoff was hurried from the scene and given medical attention and as soon as traffic was cleared, the wrecked cars were removed from the scene.

Fred Kelly at the police station pleaded guilty to a charge of transporting and possessing liquor on a public highway when arraigned before Justice Edward Jones, and was fined $100 and costs.

Taken Into Co. Court
Informations were filed in the County Court this morning, in which Fred Kelly was charged with possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor. The younger brother, Emmett, was charged in an information with possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor and in a second with driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition.

The older brother stated in the court room that he and his brother left Harmon last evening to drive to Freeport for a conference with the owner of the former's farm, Seth Scott. At the Hill school house, he stated, they met a stranger, who was repairing a tire and from him the older of the two purchased two bottles of liquor. Coming to Dixon, he said, they met an acquaintance and were directed to a place east of the city, where they procured two drinks of liquor and home brew, the older brother paying for all of the drinks.

Judge Leach scored the elder brother for his part in purchasing the liquor, making his younger brother drunk, and then permitting him to drive the car on the busiest thoroughfare in the county.

Judge Scored Both
"Both of you are in court this morning on serious charges. You might have been here on charges of manslaughter. The state's attorney, when in office and this court have been trying to put a stop to this practice of driving cars on the highways of the county by drunken drivers. It is not a pleasant duty either on the part of the officers or this court, but this is going to be stopped.

"The most serious part of this case is not the small amount of liquor which was transported by you, but the fact that you, the eldest brother purchased liquor and made your younger brother drunk and then by your own admission that you were in no condition to drive a car had your brother drive for you, and endangering the lives of scores of innocent people on the busiest thoroughfare in the city or county."

Severe Penalty Imposed
This was but a part of the talk given both men before sentence had been passed. After Fred, the elder of the two, had told different stories concerning the manner in which he came into possession of the liquor, Judge Leach imposed a fine of $500 and costs and 60 days in the county jail on charges of possession and transportation.

To the younger brother, Emmett, a fine of $250 and costs and 60 days in (Continued on page 2)

Learns Man He Was to Entrust as Head of Business is Thief

New York, July 30—(AP)—On the eve of retiring and giving his fur business into the hands of employees, Max Cohen, president of M. Cohen & Brothers, furriers, discovered that the man who was to take over control of the business, John Dingfelder, had been robbing him for five years. The thefts had so weakened the company, Cohen said today, that he had to postpone his retirement indefinitely. Dingfelder had worked for him 30 years, starting at $4 a week, and slowly had increased his salary until it attained $90,000 annually, plus bonuses. Cohen told his story in general sessions court where Dingfelder was arraigned for robbery and sentenced to from six months to three years in the penitentiary. Max Ackerman, a fellow employee arraigned as Dingfelder's accomplice, received a similar sentence.

JURY IN LOONEY CASE TO GET IT THIS AFTERNOON

Defendant Closes Dramatic Appeal for His Ac- quittal Today

Rock Island, Ill., July 30—(AP)—The fate of John P. Looney, on trial for conspiracy to protect gambling is expected to be placed in the hands of the jury late this afternoon.

Attorney William C. Allen of the defense, concluded his address at 11:30 o'clock this noon, as court recessed after having talked only since 9:30 o'clock when Looney finished his own defense argument, which began at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. As court recessed Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Hadley, who is to make the closing arguments for the state, starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, announced that he would be through by 4 o'clock. Judge N. A. Larson is expected to take an hour to read his instructions to the jury.

Looney Was Dramatic
Looney brought his five hour argument to a dramatic close this morning, calling upon the jury to save him and his dead son from the stain of a criminal.

"I feel now that the spirit of my boy is giving me the strength and courage to talk to you. His spirit tells me to tell you that he was not a conspirator.

"I will come back to expose the real murderers. You haven't sent the real murderers to the penitentiary. Only the small fry. The real murderers are still free.

"As I stand here near the Stars and Stripes of the country I love so well, under the canopy of the heaven, I pray to you, and hope to meet my God—not guilty. I thank you."

In opening his address, Attorney Allen first defended his own integrity as a lawyer, which has been frequently attacked during the trial, and his statements brought a series of clashes with the prosecution. After a sum of objections to his tactics were sustained by the court, Allen said:

Won't Try Murder Case.
"They have brought in all the cats and dogs to 'get' John Looney. They have indicted him ten times. He was brought back for trial for murder and they won't give it to him."

As he finished this statement he was again challenged by the prosecution, and was warned by the court to "keep within the evidence of the case."

He devoted the most of his address to an attack upon the nature of the state's evidence and character of its witnesses, and to painting a word picture of Looney as a man who had given his life to protecting the public morals.

Abandoned Auto Being Held by Lee Sheriff

A Jewett touring car which was partially wrecked and abandoned just east of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway last week, is being held while Sheriff E. C. Risley is conducting an investigation. Late developments lead to the belief that the car is one that may have been used by a bandit crew. A new black silk handkerchief, folded as a blind fold and two skeleton keys were found in the machine yesterday afternoon when it was subjected to a thorough search.

The car bears Illinois license plates issued to a Chicago man for a Buick touring car and Chicago wheel tags issued to another party in Montgomery county for a Ford touring car. The car has been held for almost a week with no inquiries received at the sheriff's office. It is expected that an officer from the Chicago automobile detective bureau will come to Dixon to assist in the investigation.

Called to California

Warren Badger and daughter, Miss Lucy, will leave Dixon Friday morning for Long Beach, Cal. They are called there by the serious illness of Earl Badger, a son of the Dixon man, who is suffering from a fever contracted on a business trip to Mexico a couple of months ago.

BRYAN BACK IN NATION'S CAPITAL CITY

Body Lies in State at Church From Noon Today to Friday

BULLETIN
Washington, July 30—(AP)—At the chance where many times he sought God's guidance in his public service, William J. Bryan received a parting benediction today from the people of the national capital.

Brought here from Tennessee where he died on Sunday, his body was taken just before noon, to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, to lie in state until noon tomorrow. Then, after a short religious service, it will be entombed at Arlington with military honors.

Long before the bronze casket reached the little red brick place of worship, nestled in a triangle where New York Avenue meets H. Street in the heart of the downtown district, reverent crowds had gathered to pay tribute to the Commoner.

While the long procession was passing, Dr. Sizoo, pastor of the church visited Mrs. Bryan at her hotel and announced that the church service tomorrow would be one of utmost simplicity. He said he would preach no sermon but would deliver a few brief remarks.

The service will begin at 8 p. m., and will be broadcast by radio. Fifteen minutes earlier the church quartette will sing as a prelude Mr. Bryan's favorite hymns "Lead kindly light" and "One sweetly solemn thought."

Washington, July 30—(AP)—William Jennings Bryan came back to Washington today to receive the last rites of the church before he begins his long rest in the Potomac Hills amidst a great company of the nation's illustrious dead.

The funeral train which had borne him from Dayton, Tenn., where he died last Sunday, reached the Union Station early in the day but its arrival found a reverent throng in waiting.

Funeral Tomorrow
The bronze casket was taken from the station to an undertaker's parlors but later it will be removed to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, where the funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

A small group of government officials greeted Mrs. Bryan at the station. She appeared in good spirits despite the strain of the long journey from Tennessee.

She had arisen nearly an hour before the train reached Washington and told her friends she had had a restful night.

Immediately on arrival the widow and her party were taken to the Lafayette Hotel, where they will remain until the funeral services tomorrow. They will be joined tomorrow morning by William J. Bryan, Jr., and by a daughter of the Commoner, Mrs. Grace Hargreaves who are coming here from California.

A detail of police escorted the party through crowds that lined the inner concourse of the station. Not until after Mrs. Bryan left the train was the casket removed. A part of the rear of the funeral car was removed to afford ready exit of the casket which then was borne to the east entrance at the level with the lower train platform.

World War Vets Guard

There the guard of honor, veterans of the World War, placed it in a motor hearse while the crowds which lined the street stood in silence. None of the Bryan party accompanied the body to the undertaking parlor and the hearse moved slowly along Massachusetts Ave. and out Tenth Street almost unnoticed by the throngs of government clerks and others hurrying to the day's work.

Immediately on reaching the establishment the casket was opened. The undertaker's assistants, who were the first to look on the features of the dead man after the arrival here said they could see no change whatever as a result of the 24 hour trip from Tennessee. A tiny spray of lily of the valley, Mr. Bryan's favorite flower, placed in the lapel of his coat at Dayton, appeared as fresh as when he journeyed here.

BRYAN FUNERAL SERVICES

These pictures, taken by an N. E. A. staff photographer show the simplicity which marked the funeral services of William Jennings Bryan at Dayton, Tenn. Above, the people of Dayton, gathered on the lawn at the home of Richard Rogers, where Bryan's body lay, as Rev. Charles Jones, pastor of the Dayton Methodist church, offers a brief prayer. The lower picture shows a part of the line of hundreds which wound into the Rogers home to view the body of the Commoner as it lay in state in a bronze casket.

FRIDAY'S PROGRAM AT ASSEMBLY WILL BE UNUSUALLY GOOD

Harry Davies' Opera Co. to Furnish Enter- tain Then

Despite the irregularity of the weather yesterday a very large audience was present at both the afternoon and evening entertainments given by the Bennett Dramatic Company. They were very pleasing in their presentation and fulfilled the highest expectations of "Play Day."

The clever English-Irish comedy "Peg O' My Heart" won hearty applause, as the vivacious Peg captivated the hearts of all.

Dr. James S. Montgomery is sure to be fine in his lecture of this evening at 8:45. Preceding him the International Singing Orchestra, all singing, will give a prelude at 2:00 p. m. and in the evening at 7:45 they will present "The Pretty Persian" a full opera in costume.

Chautauqua audiences like to be made happy. This has been one reason why the Harry Davies Opera Company has become such a tremendous success. For years Mr. Davies has been an outstanding figure on the chautauqua platform. This year he has surrounded himself with a group of eight other unusual musicians. In the afternoon they will give a prelude concert of operatic and semi-popular numbers. The evening will be the big event—one of the biggest events of the entire chautauqua. They will give that unusual comic opera "Pretty Persian" which requires the entire cast of nine singers. What a great night it will be!

The School of Religious Workers is progressing in a fine spirit of inspiration and helpfulness. Dr. Gruber's initial address yesterday was developed in a very interesting and broad (Continued on page 2)

WILL ASK NAVY DEPT. TO TEST "DEATH STROKE" Inventor of "Canned Lightning" Claims It Destructive

San Francisco, Calif., July 30—(AP)—Dr. Edward R. Scott, self-styled inventor of what he terms a "death stroke" in the form of "canned lightning" which he claims will revolutionize existing war tactics, said today that he would formally request the navy department's assistance in testing his invention off the California coast sometime in September.

Here are a few of the possibilities attributed to his invention by Dr. Scott:

Destruction of all life, on land, sea or in the air within a radius of 20 miles; disabling of all radio apparatus within a similar radius; destruction of the superstructures of battleships at a distance of ten miles or more; the bringing down of airplanes from any height possible for a plane to achieve; destruction or disabling of land fortifications at long distances.

While maintaining strict secrecy regarding structural details of his machine, Dr. Scott said all necessary parts are here ready for assembling and that the more important parts were carefully guarded in a safety deposit vault.

Hearing on S. D. & E. Rey.

Petition Here Tomorrow

A member of the State public utilities commission will be in Dixon tomorrow to hear objections in the application of the Sterling, Dixon & Eastern railway company of this city for permission to discontinue their lines in Dixon and Sterling and the interurban connecting both cities. The hearing will be held at the court house at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Picnic of Tri-County Druggists, August 13

The Tri-County Druggists association of Lee, Whiteside and Ogle counties will hold their annual picnic and outing at Lowell Park, Thursday, August 13. A full program of entertainment has been arranged for the druggists and their families with athletic events and many other features, today.

PENALTY THREATS BRING CASH FROM EIGHT TREASURERS

Cook Co. Receeds in Seces- sion Bluff; and "Kicks In."

Springfield, Ill., July 30—(AP)—Eight county treasurers have turned over approximately $4,500,000 to the state treasury since yesterday morning, when Oscar Nelson, State Auditor and Omer N. Custer, State Treasurer, threatened to exact the legal penalty from all delinquent County Treasurers or their bondsmen. Under the law County Treasurers who failed to get their 1924 taxes to the state treasury before July 15 are liable to a penalty of one-tenth of one percent daily for the money due.

Cook County was one of the first to turn in taxes, after the announcement from Springfield yesterday. A check for $2,000,000 from the County Treasurer was received last night and six other counties settled today. The check from Cook county covers only a portion of the amount due, but it was accompanied by a promise that more would follow immediately. Other counties that squared themselves with the state today are: Peoria $175,000; Will, $87,000; Alexander, $31,000; Gallatin, $9,000; McHenry, $117,000; Cass, $24,000 and Hamilton, $27,000. The Auditor and Treasurer were not in Springfield today and no action has been taken, so far, on their threat to collect approximately $150,000 which is collectable in penalties under the law. The payments will enable the state to meet all of its obligations and principal and interest on the soldiers bonus bonds which are to be retired August 1.

Attaches of the treasurer's office indicated today that the eight payments came from the counties that were heaviest in debt to the state.

Two Made Escape from Jackson County Jail

Marion, Ill., July 30—(AP)—Harvey Burkey and James McBride, prisoners, sawed bars and escaped from the Jackson County jail early today.

EARTH TREMORS FELT IN SOUTH- WEST THIS A. M.

Texas, Kansas, Okla- homa, Report Slight Quakes Today

Amarillo, Tex., July 30—(AP)—An earth tremor of nearly 30 seconds duration, shook Amarillo and surrounding towns early today.

The shock was registered here at 6:12 a. m., buildings swayed noticeably, but no damage has been reported.

WICHITA HAS TREMOR
Wichita, Kas., July 30—(AP)—An earth tremor of very low intensity was felt here about 6:15 a. m. today.

FELT IN OKLAHOMA
Oklahoma City, Okla., July 30—(AP)—Scores of persons here declared they felt a slight earth tremor early today lasting about 30 seconds.

Case Co. Branch Heads to Visit Dixon Monday

A meeting of branch managers and officers of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co. from all parts of the United States, including the head officials from the main office at Racine, Wis., will arrive in Dixon Monday, between 35 and 40 strong, to spend several days at the Grand Detour Plow division of the company. The visit of these influential men to Dixon is for the purpose of attending demonstrations of plowing machinery south of the company's plant. Many improvements in machinery and new tools will be shown for the benefit of the branch heads. It will be one of the biggest gatherings of implement men ever held in Dixon, according to officials of the company.

Bank Robbers in Pana Frustrated by Woman

Pana, Ill., July 30—(AP)—Efforts of robbers to blow the vault of the People's State Bank at Sigel, near here, early today were frustrated when Mrs. Joseph Greer was awakened by their noise. She aroused her husband who rushed into the street and called for help. The robbers ran to their automobile and fled. They had cut all telephone wires leading from the town before entering the bank by breaking down the rear door.

Several Lee Co. Roads to be Gravelled Soon

John M. Powers of Sterling will begin work next week graveling several miles of roadway in Lee county. A stretch of two miles of the Dixon road through Nelson will be gravelled, also a mile stretch on a road north of Harmon and a part of the Indian Head trail west of Harmon. Two miles will also be gravelled in Amboy township, west of Amboy.

First Period Boy Scouts Camp Will End This Eve

The first period of Camp Black Hawk, the Boy Scouts camp near Franklin Grove, which has been a happy and beneficial outing for the boys, will close this evening when the boys will break camp and return home. The second period of the camp begins Saturday morning.

Mrs. Lily Woolver will spend Friday in Chicago on business in connection with her millinery store.

INDICTMENTS FOR MURDER VOTED TODAY

Two Members of Bold Gang Held; Two are Dead; Seek One

Chicago, July 30—(AP)—Less than 24 hours after their daring raid upon one of Chicago's most pretentious hostilities, all surviving members, save one, of a bandit quintette who yesterday carried their palnman's gun play to the soft velvety carpets of the Drake Hotel, were in the toils of the law, facing true bills for murder and robbery with a gun.

Ted "Tex" Corts and Eric Nelson, two of the bandit gang were dead, two in jail, and a fifth at large with a loot of perhaps $10,000 snatched from the cashiers' cage in a gun battle with House Detectives in which Frank B. Rodkey, the cashier was killed.

Indictments Voted
Indictments charging the surviving trio with murder were voted by a special grand jury today in less than an hour from the presentation of evidence by the state attorney's staff. Chief Justice Hopkins promised an immediate trial.

Stirred by the daring descent upon the residence district of Chicago's most wealthy citizens, police maintained a vigorous search for William J. Mellichuk, fifth member of the band who escaped with the loot. He, with two companions already in custody, Jack Woods and Joseph Holmes, face trial for the murder of Rodkey.

Woods admitted that this was an assumed name. He corroborated Holmes' story that Nelson was the instigator of the robbery.

Woods also admitted that he had

Mason City Robbers Shot Through Neck by Pursuing Officer

Mason City, Iowa, July 30—(AP)—C. Moran, said to be from St. Paul, one of a gang which held up a hotel here early today, was shot through the neck by Ed. Escherich, marshal of Hamilton, near here, as he was attempting to escape the pursuing officer into a field.

Three other members of the gang are being sought. They abandoned a new automobile after it had been wrecked while making a sharp turn, while fleeing a pursuing police car.

The holdup netted the robbers, $10.

received part of the loot from the missing robber known as Nugent, declaring the latter's real name was William J. Mellichuk.

Names Scott's Brother
He also told a story that Robert Scott, brother of Russell Scott, under sentence to hang but who has obtained a sanity trial, was a friend and associate of the robber band.

Woods however, told numerous conflicting stories.

The Scott story, Woods based on a post card signed "R. Scott." It had been mailed to Mellichuk, was dated May 9 and bore a picture of the Hotel Roosevelt on the south side. On the other side was written this message:

"Dear Bill: Your letter just received. As yet your suitcase has not arrived. Had letter from Miller the other day. Yes he is at home, Detroit, but I have forgotten his address, thought possibly you had not ordered your case sent here. Anyhow it has not arrived and let me hear from you when you get to Chicago. As ever,
"R. Scott."

Chicago, July 30—(AP)—In movie thriller style, a robber crew, masked and bristling with pistols and shotguns, invaded the exclusive Drake Hotel in Chicago's "Gold Coast" at tea time yesterday, enacting scenes of killing and sanguinary gun fighting that extended subsequently for an hour over north side boulevards.

Arrest Fourth Bandit.
When the spectacular affray was over, of five robbers, two were dead and one captured; a hotel clerk had been killed; two women had been injured; two robbers had escaped with $10,000 and as a final early today, one of the escaped holdup men was found and the one previously arrested confessed fully.

The robbery was staged within a stone's throw of the residential mansions of Chicago's 400, while hundreds of guests thronged the lobbies and heavy crowded adjacent Michigan Avenue. A dozen policemen were within call.

Robbers Took Their Time.
For fifteen minutes the robbers, one of them a half-bred Cherokee Indian cowboy from Texas, terrorized employees in the hotel offices on the main (Continued on page 2) by about seventy-five loyal boosters.

The Young Women's department, aided by Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Hamtainment and after tireless attempts finally brought forth a response from "the other end of the table." Mr.

Jesse seemingly received all the "pup" sent in his direction and met gratefully upheld the honor of "the other bunch" with his humorous stories told in his humorous way. The evening was one of much enjoyment for all and the banquet—well, it was fine.

Contributions for This Page Welcomed

Contributions to the society column are desired by the Telegraph, and all persons leaving town or having friends to visit them are requested to telephone the society editor at phone No. 5. Accounts of parties, dances, marriages and announcements of engagements also are desired. If items are mailed to the office they must bear the signature and address of the sender, not for publication, but as evidence of good faith. Write plainly, on one side of the page only.

For society editor, call 5, Telegraph. As a rule, items which are held over for several days before reaching this office will not be used, for the news is only news at the time it occurs.

RESIGNATION—

Why, why repine, my pensive friend,
At pleasures slipp'd away?
Some the stern Fates will never lend,
And all refuse to stay.

I see the rainbow in the sky,
The dew upon the grass;
I see them, and I ask not why
They glimmer or they pass.

With folded arms I linger not,
To call them back; 'twere vain;
In this, or in some other spot,
I know they'll shine again.

—Walter Savage Landor.

CYNTHIA GREY SAYS—

Speaking of Painted Knees.

How About Tattooed Men?
It's funny how seriously men take freak styles and how ready they are to believe that women are morons.

For instance, some woman in Chicago gives out the statement that painted knees are the fashion, and that the smartest thing now is a marine scene, a summer landscape or the likeness of your best beau etched in color on your knee.

That bit of news makes front page on all the New York newspapers. And you know an editor thinks an item has to be pretty important before he gives it such a play as that.

Apparently for women to paint their knees is as important as a revolution in China or a monkey trial.

The implication is, of course, what for we women are!

And yet that's very unfair. Did you ever know women to give over at whole forearm to be tattooed? But just go out to the beach and see how many men have done that very thing.

Painted knees would probably stand a much better chance of becoming popular with men than with women. As women become more sophisticated in their tastes and become more elegant in their costume, they abandon the freak styles.

There's very little men can take exception to these days about women's clothes. They are a little short, possibly, but they aren't too tight for modesty, or too low to intrigue. A woman today doesn't insist on shoes that are too small for her feet or corsets that give her an 18-inch waist. She wears hats that fit her head and don't restrict the public view. She wears thin clothes in the summer and thick ones in the winter, which any man admits is a reasonable procedure, but he has never seen his way clear to work out such a program himself.

She has actually become sensible about her clothes, a thing the old-fashioned man would have said was impossible as for her to vote sensibly.

She has done this without sacrificing variety, beauty, or the eternal feminine.

But it will take a long time for this to percolate the masculine mind. And for that reason, men will always be ready to pounce on an item like the one on the painted knee and broadcast it to the world.

It will be a long time before we convince men we are anything but the weaker-minded sex.

Relief Committee Successful Meeting

The Relief Committee of the W. R. C. held a successful and enjoyable all day meeting Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. W. E. Richardson. At noon a tempting picnic dinner was served.

The work for the afternoon consisted of sewing blocks for pillow covers, and a short program was given by Mrs. McKenney, and LaFerne Richardson, completing a most enjoyable day.

DR. BOSTROM WAS GUEST OF MR. AND MRS. GOODSSELL.

Dr. O. H. Bostrom, of Rock Island, who was the speaker yesterday morning on the program at the Assembly Chautauque, and this morning, also, was the distinguished guest yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Goodsell of this city.

Dr. Bostrom, who is the director of the Archipelago Choir, is also a member of the faculty at Augustana College.

MRS. WESTERMAN TO DRIVE TO NEW YORK.

Mrs. W. L. Westerman and son, Evan, will return to New York city the latter part of the week, after enjoying a visit with Mrs. Westerman's mother, Mrs. M. L. Davies of Hennepin avenue. Mrs. Westerman will drive her car to New York, on the return trip, having motored here.

Menus for the Family.

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Berries, cereal, thin cream, bran muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Cheese fondue, toasted muffins, orange marmalade, romain salad, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Ham baked in milk, baked potatoes, creamed new cabbage, cottage cheese and raspberry jam, whole wheat rolls, apple tapioca, milk, coffee.

With the exception of the ham suggested in the dinner menu there are no dishes a child four years old may not eat. Meat is not necessary for his dinner since the cheese fondue at noon time is a hearty meat substitute and the dinner is well-balanced with-out the ham.

Apple Tapioca Pudding.

Four tart apples, ¼ cup sugar, one-third cup quick cooking tapioca, 2½ cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon.

Add salt to boiling water and stir in tapioca. Cook in double boiler until tapioca is transparent. Add half the sugar. Pare apples, cut in halves and remove cores. Arrange in a buttered baking dish with cut side up. Sprinkle with remaining sugar, dot with bits of butter and sprinkle with cinnamon. Pour over prepared tapioca and bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender. Certain varieties of apples will cook in 20 minutes. Serve warm or cold with plain norwipped cream. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

There's nothing like a birthday party when one is from four to eight and the weather is fine. The wise mother will welcome the chance for play out of doors even if the kitchen is hot for the baking of cake.

Since most small persons nap from one to two hours every afternoon why not plan to have the party from three to five or six in the afternoon. If the later hour is chosen time is allowed for the simple birthday supper before the early bedtime. If the earlier hour is preferred ice cream and cake can be served without "spoling" the regular supper at home.

The following menu is suggested for a supper party:

Chilled Fruit Juice,
Creamed Chicken on Toast,
Peas in Mashed Potato Cases,
Ice Cream.

The fruit juice is merely orange juice made pink with raspberry juice and not too cold. Two tablespoonsful served in punch glasses make an adequate "appetizer" for small appetites.

Women preparing the toast for the creamed chicken cut it in half-inch squares after toasting and before covering with the chicken. The squares are of course placed close together preserving the shape of the piece of toast but the tiny squares are easy to eat and require no cutting for tiny hands.

The new peas are most attractive served in nests of mashed potato and mean no particular fussing for the mother when serving the plates.

Whole wheat bread and butter sandwiches cut in fancy shapes could be served with this course but are not necessary since toast is used.

No party is complete without ice cream and cake and if the cake is a simple sponge cake without a frosting and the ice cream, plain vanilla, without too much cream in it no dessert could be better.

If the party is not to stay for supper try serving the "refreshments" about four o'clock. Games after the little luncheon will help bring the appetite back to normal for the regular meal while many mothers serve a 4 o'clock luncheon to their children in any event.

Lemonade and sandwiches with cookies cut in fancy shapes or ice cream and cake are always loved by kiddies and can't hurt them but don't serve both the sandwiches and ice cream.

These suggestions for sandwich fillings may appeal to you and they can't hurt the children:

Minced chicken with shredded lettuce moistened with lemon juice and oil.

Finely chopped prunes combined with peanut butter and made moist with cream.

Finely chopped dates combined with cottage cheese.

Nuts and raisins chopped and moistened with cream.

Shredded lettuce and finely chopped hard-cooked eggs made moist with boiled salad dressing. Cook the eggs for 30 minutes in water just below the boiling point.

In making the sandwiches butter both pieces of bread. The filling "sticks" better and the sandwiches are

Sponge Cake.

Six eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon water, 1¼ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Sift sugar and measure. Sift with salt and gradually sift into egg yolks, beating constantly. Sift flour once and measure. Sift four times with baking powder before using. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold into first mixture. Add vanilla and fold in sifted flour. Turn into an Angel cake pan. Bake 1 hour in a slow oven. Turn pan upside down to cool.

Vanilla Ice Cream.
One quart milk, 1 cup sugar, few grains salt, 1 junket tablet, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 cup whipping cream.

Crush junket tablet and dissolve in water and vanilla. Add sugar and salt to milk and heat slightly, not more than "blood heat." Stir to dissolve sugar. When lukewarm stir in dissolved junket and vanilla. Pour into freezer mold and let stand undisturbed until "set." When mixture is half frozen fold in the cream whipped until stiff. Finish freezing and let stand one hour to ripen.

This mixture can be frozen with or without stirring as convenient.

The recipe will serve eight persons teaspoon vanilla.

Bridge-Tea Was Most Enjoyable

One of the charming parties of the mid-summer was the bridge-tea given by Miss Calla Greig Tuesday afternoon at the cheerful Sunset Tea Room in Grand Detour. Many garden flowers in gay hues added their beauty to the decorations. Twenty-four guests were entertained.

Miss Dorothy Palmer won the first prize at bridge and Mrs. Morgan L. Davies won the second prize.

Mrs. Lewis McGeorge of Marshfield, Oregon, and Mrs. E. J. McNamara of Maysville, Ky., were out-of-town guests present.

CREOLE COFFEE—
"I'm spoiled for your coffee here in the North," exclaimed a young man who has recently returned from New Orleans. The reason was that he had been drinking Creole coffee which is produced by slow filtration and is particularly strong. The coffee is pressed in the filter of the pot and a small quantity of boiling water is poured over at intervals of about five minutes, or until it has filtered through each time. This may be served at once or if kept in a glass jar, will stand reheating for future use. The richest, strongest coffee is made from that which comes in vacuum packed, hermetically sealed cans that prevent the volatile oils and aroma from escaping and insure them against deterioration by air or dampness.

CYNTHIA GREY SAYS— Others Will Not Keep Secrets We Keep.

You know the girl who prefaces her confidences to you with the words, "You know, my dear, you are the only person in the world I would tell this to—but I simply had to tell someone—you mustn't breathe this to a soul—"

And then she proceeds to tell you the tale which she couldn't keep, but which she expects unwisely that you are going to keep. Usually, she tells a few other persons, too. Then when it is no longer a secret, but something she has confided to all her friends she is dreadfully upset when she finds the news is out.

"You can't trust anyone," she will moan.

If she could really make herself believe this, she would be much better off.

But the chances are she will make the same mistake a second time, not because she trusts her friends so implicitly, but because she must talk over her affairs with others. She has no reserve.

She forgets that if she herself is so perfectly free about all her affairs, others are going to be the same.

The girl who, unsolicited, insists on telling you all the intimate details of her life, is showing a pitiful lack of understanding if she thinks you are going to hold them less lightly than she does herself.

We all hate a gossip—that is we hate the word gossip because of its ugly implication of malice aforethought. But there are few of us above discussing personalities.

And things that have been told to us casually, are repeated casually by us, and frequently no amount of trouble is caused, because no story remains the same after it has been told a few times.

Many a girl has lost a good job because she told some little tale out of school that caused annoyance and complications she never dreamed of. Many a woman has caused her husband to lose a good raise because it became known in the firm that her husband confided business moves to her, and she told the world. Many a girl has lost her reputation, not because of what people said about her behind her back, but what she herself actually told.

We haven't any right to expect others to keep secrets we can't keep ourselves. We shouldn't blame them for doing exactly the things we did—talk it over with a friend.

BRIDGE TO ISLAND PARK.

Dixon has a great undeveloped asset in Island Park. It could and should be the most attractive and popular public amusement resort in northern Illinois, but Dixon can never realize upon its value until easy means of access are provided for the public to reach the island. A bridge across one channel or the other, at the most feasible and most economical point, is the only answer, and some day Dixon will build this bridge. We should begin thinking about it and planning for it.

Nothing can contribute as much to the general growth and prosperity of Dixon as amusements and attractions of this nature. In Island Park we have a spot which larger cities would spend millions to own. It is given to Dixon and we should capitalize it.

The island, with its giant trees, beautiful shrubbery, its winding lagoons and all its natural beauty is a delightful spot just as nature left it. A little expenditure of money would make it safe from the ravages of high water, would install swimming beaches, canoe houses, a drive around the shore, wonderful picnic grounds, playgrounds, and all of the sort of things that attract people and give them pleasure and enjoyment.

We believe that a bridge to Island Park would be a profitable investment for Dixon.

TENNESSEE ADOPTS NEW BOOK.

The state textbook commission has adopted for schools of Tennessee a book to be substituted for the one in use when John T. Scopes taught concerning the theory of evolution. The book is approved as not in contradiction of the story of the creation is told in Genesis.

It says there are many points of physical resemblance between man and some of the primates, and that the big apes "must be recognized as having evolved along special lines of their own, and none of them are to be thought of as the source of the origin of the human species."

Further it says: "It is futile, therefore, to look for the primitive stock of the human species in any existing animal."

This statement is said to be substantially in accord with beliefs of evolutionists.

George W. Hunter is author of the book called Civic Biology, used in the school in which Scopes was an instructor. It deals with biology in the following manner:

"We have now learned that animal forms may be arranged so as to begin with very simple one-called forms, and culminate in a group that contains man himself. This arrangement is called the evolutionary series. Evolution means change, and these groups are believed by scientists to represent stages in complexity of development of life on earth. Geology teaches that millions of years ago life upon the earth was very simple, and that gradually more and more complex forms of life appeared; as the rocks formed latest in time show the most highly developed forms of animal life. The great English scientist, Charles Darwin, from this and other evidence, explained the theory of evolution. This is the belief that simple forms of life on the earth slowly and gradually gave rise to those more complex, and that thus ultimately the most complex forms came into existence.

"Anatomically we find we must place man with the ape-like mammals, because of the many points of structural likeness. Anatomically, there is a greater difference between the lowest type of monkey and the highest type of ape than there is between the highest type of ape and the lowest savage, yet there is an immense mental gap between monkey and man."

THE PUBLIC BE SAVED.

Adopting as its slogan "The public be saved," the New York State Taxicab Chamber of Commerce has prepared a new "Ten Commandments" for drivers. Fifty thousand copies have been put into circulation. The "commandments" ought to be passed along. They follow:

Be considerate of pedestrians and other motor vehicle operators.

Never drive recklessly, give signal when stopping or turning.

Approach street intersections cautiously, with car under full control.

Keep brakes in proper condition—better sure than sorry.

Use tire chains when streets are wet and covered with ice and snow.

Adjust or repair any mechanical trouble before accepting fares.

Obey the traffic rules and signals and commands of traffic officers.

Always be careful, realizing your responsibility toward others.

Be courteous and polite always; it pays in the short and long run.

Persons of the class who deplore the ease with which complainants obtain divorces jumped with all of their feet upon Judge Caverly of Chicago because he said that a husband was not entitled to a divorce solely on a showing that his wife had sat in an automobile on a deserted road at an early morning hour with another man. Now what shall the judge do?

TOM SIMS SAYS

Two's a couple. Three means they go to a picture show.

While a scientist claims man is run by electricity we claim he is run by his creditors.

Women would be much nicer people if they wouldn't refuse to agree with you when you are mistaken.

When an auto balks in the middle of a mud hole it is merely trying to replace the mule.

A fool and his money are often parted before they meet.

Isn't it funny when you are mad at somebody and know it's all your fault yet can't help it?

Only thing you can tell by some public clocks is what time it isn't.

Moths have a hard life. Imagine living in overcoats all summer and bathing suits all winter.

This is from Hawaii, as all this column will be for perhaps two more weeks.

All tourist resorts have their boosters, but certain Hawaiian boosters have discovered perhaps the most original "talking point" of them all. In Hawaii, they say, you can escape jazz! There are, to be sure, hotel dance orchestras in Honolulu which perform jazz for visitors who would not know how to dance to anything else. But they play it apologetically and none too well, as good musicians should.

And generally, even tourist commercial finds it profitable to banish the jazz.

Possibly this is the only accessible spot on earth still relatively uninfected. The plaintively melodious native Hawaiian music has gone all over the world, and even chance visitors are already familiar enough with it to want to hear it on its native soil.

Probably it could not happen now even in Hawaii, but the writer recalls a few years ago, attending a jazz concert in Honolulu with one of the most cultivated ladies in the island who had, until then, never heard jazz. This was from a college glee club, stopping over one day on their way to the Orient, and naturally they jazzed the jazz as only college boys can. It was interesting to note the reaction of a cultivated and sensitive but wholly unprepared mind.

The comment was, "startling, but interesting." There was no suggestion that it was music.

POLYNESIAN MUSIC AND HOW IT ROSE

This Polynesian music, of which the Hawaiian is the only form familiar to the outside world, is an interesting development.

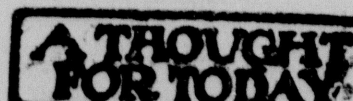

Originally, the Polynesian peoples had chants as primitive as those of African savages, with a scale of only four notes. One can hear chants in Nubia and in Fiji which a western ear could scarcely tell apart. The missionaries had difficulty teaching them the western scale.

But, when they once learned it, their inherent artistic genius caused them to develop it in forms more delicate and melodious than any the missionaries knew.

The world knows the plaintive Hawaiian form. In Fiji it is more barbaric. The Fijians are, by part Polynesian, and are mostly of negroid blood.

One of them intones the melody, in a way familiar in the singing of American negroes, while the others "boom-boom" the accompaniment in constantly accelerated "44" time, in a way that belongs distinctly to the jungle. Yet the air itself is probably recognizably derived from some familiar Methodist camp-meeting hymn.

In Tahiti, it takes the form of orgies of singing "himenes." All are totally different from the original native chant, but all are also refinements of the early nineteenth-century Protestant church music from which they are derived.

Blessed is the man that esaueth temptation; for, when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to them that love him.—James 1: 12.

Whoever lives looking for pleasure only, his senses uncontrolled, immoderate in his enjoyments, idle and weak, the tempter will certainly overcome him as the wind blows down a tree.—Buddha.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

And in another second Juggle Jump was doing a regular fisher's horn ppe in the road.

"Dear me!" laughed Nancy. "What a fussy place this is! Nothing stays still for a minute. Even the cows and chickens are doing a jig."

"I told you so," said Juggle Jump. "I feel a sort of queer feeling coming over me, too. There? I know it!" And in another second Juggle Jump was doing a regular fisher's horn ppe in the road. And before they knew what they were about, the Twins, too, were dancing about as though the Pied Piper of Hamelin had started to play one of his magic tunes.

"I can't stop!" shouted Nick. "Neither can I!" cried Nancy. "Be patient! I'll stop you," said Juggle Jump feeling for the buttons on his coat.

At last he found the button marked "perfectly still" and gave it a push. Instantly his feet stopped jiggling and he stood as still as a stone.

"Now grab for my hands a you go past," he said to the Twins.

This they did and the minute they touched him their feet became quiet again.

"Now don't let go," said Juggle Jump. "And you'll be all right. We'll go toward Tumble Town now and see if we can find any trace of the cook's button."

Off they went toward Tumble Town past dancing pigs and waiting ducks and jiggling animals of all kinds. Nothing in Movie Land could keep still.

Indeed, three people walking along the road quietly were such a curiosity.

"I'll get your picture next time you go past," he said patiently.

But no one waited to see if he did or not. Out they went again into the street.

"What a silly old place!" said Nancy.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT—CONTINUED

"Sally dear, I have been such a disappointment to myself," Bee repeated. "I find I've been so arrogant and self-satisfied. I rather looked down upon you, Sally, because you openly declared you did not want children and had determined not to have them. I had determined to be a perfect—or nearly perfect—mother."

"All these were dreams, and then, much to my surprise I found that when I knew I was going to have a baby, I didn't want it at all. I could not bring those beautiful dreams back—I only saw myself growing ugly. I hated myself. I hated myself, perhaps, because I found out that I had always been more vain of my form than of anything else in the world."

"I found out then that I could not think of the little immortal soul that was to be entrusted to my keeping, because my mind was so engrossed in the change in my own body. I found out the superior woman that I thought I was, was only a superficial bundle of vanities—just as small and vain as these little moving picture girls that I had always despised."

"Oh, Leslie dear, you cannot understand how I felt when our dear Bee, whom you and I had both thought so splendid, made this pitiful confession."

"I tried to think it was not true. I tried to think that she was a little bit delirious. But even at that it was something so foreign to what I who had known her all her life, thought of Bee, that it seemed to me that I was talking to someone else."

The whole thing struck me so queerly, that I had one of those fantastic ideas that we read of in those terrible French stories of de Maupassant, who, you know, delighted in terrifying ideas."

The fantastic thought came to me that in some supernatural manner another soul had managed to get into Bee's body when she was under the influence of the anesthetic."

Don't smile, Leslie. I know I'm rambling in a perfectly ridiculous manner, and that this idea is almost as crazy as was poor Bee's; but I'm sending all my reactions to you that you may know how peculiarly her conversation affected me."

There she was, lying perfectly calm and collected among her lacy pillows and telling me all these things as though she were talking about someone else. It really was the weirdest thing I had ever encountered."

I found I could stand it no longer, so I made an excuse to leave the room. I hunted up Dick and asked excitedly:

"Have you talked with Bee since the baby was born?"

Leslie, he turned such a tragic face to mine that I fairly gasped.

"Sally, Sally," he whispered in that kind of hushed voice that one might use only when one is laboring under a strain that must inevitably break one in the end.

"Sally," he repeated, "what is it? Tell me what is the matter with my wife."

"I have sent for the doctor. The only thing that I can think of is that Bee is insane."

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

THURSDAY, JULY 30

You are very curious.
You get to the bottom of things.
You are very adaptable.
And have many talents.
You are fond of clothes.
And of bright lights.
You never seek solitude.
Or care to be alone.
Companionship is necessary to you.
And people enjoy you.
You have clearly defined ideas.
But are susceptible to reason.
Your ambition goads you to success.
And you reach your goal.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Nothing gives quite so much relief to a person suffering from fatigue as a good hot bath.

At first the warmth of the water has a stimulating effect. The superficial capillaries dilate promptly, the circulation is quickened, perspiration is excited, the skin easily parts with its worn-out layers, the stiffened and wearied muscles relax.

For the time the brain is more alert, as the sense of fatigue yields to one of satisfaction.

Then a feeling of drowsiness and languor comes over the bather, and if the bath is continued long enough sleepiness follows.

A hot bath does not take the place of food or sleep in removing fatigue, but is an admirable prelude.

When followed by a cold bath there is a marked revival of energy.

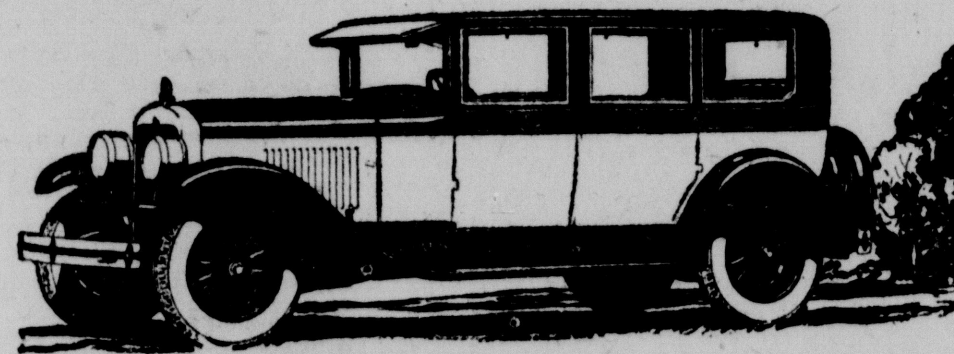

In drawing water for a hot bath, test the temperature of the steam coming from the pipe with the elbow, not the hand. The hand is too insensitive to judge the temperature for the more delicate skin of the rest of the body.

OBSTINATE

The juryman had retired to consider their verdict. When they re-entered the court the judge asked the foreman if they had arrived at a unanimous decision.

"No, your honor," he replied, "we haven't. I never met eleven such obstinate men in all my life."

TWO NEW RECORDS
MADE AT AURORA'S
RACES YESTERDAYSingle G Out of Money for Third Time in 13 Years

Aurora, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—Single G, 1:58½, the 15 year old "iron horse" of the grand circuit, won the six furlongs dash of the free-for-all pace here Wednesday in 1:30 and then finished fourth in the mile and a quarter event of the same race, which was won by Sir Roche in the world's record time of 2:35½. It was the third time in 13 years of racing that Single G, owned by W. H. Barefoot of Cambridge, Mass., has been out of the money.

The program was dedicated to the veteran pacer and he was given an ovation by the crowd when he was driven onto the track by Ed Allen. He came from behind in the stretch to win the six furlong dash beating Sir Roche by a head at the wire.

In the 1½ mile race, Single G. was in a pocket most of the way, Allen got him out at the end of the stretch but Sir Roche, which stepped the last quarter in 28½, was going so fast that the veteran could not get up. Sir Roche beat Hal Mahone by a head and Margaret Dille nosed out Single G. for third place. Officials said it was one of the hardest fought races in the history of the grand circuit.

One other world's record was broken today when Othelinda, a bay mare by Peter the Great-Ethel Volo, owned and driven by Walter Cox, stepped six furlongs in 1:30, clipping two-fifths of a second off the record established by Tommy Murphy's Tita Bruen yesterday.

Summaries:

CAN ANY ATHLETE
CHALLENGE POWER
AND WIN BATTLE?Interesting Situations in Several Branches of Big Sports

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Is the individual as great or greater than the organization in sport? Can any athlete occupy a position which challenges the governing authority of the game—and get away with it?

The innocent bystander may say the answer is negative in both cases, but it may be well to recall a few pertinent cases.

Charley Paddock, for instance, engaged in a tempestuous lawsuit, engaged in two years but has lost few decisions in them, up to date.

The issue has been whether the champion will or will not agree to fight Harry Wills. The commission, wielding all the authority it could muster, finally obtained Dempsey's agreement to a match—in 1926—but the titleholder, since then, has eked out a living and avoided further discussion of the subject, while the boxing rulers "hold the bag."

Babe Ruth became imbued with the old idea that the king could do no wrong. It was a costly notion however, for after tasting of the forbidden barnstorming fruit, the Bambino was exiled and otherwise punished by Commissioner Landis. Baseball's discipline is administered with an iron hand.

William Tilden, it seems has jumped out of the frying pan of his victorious player-writer battle of 1924, into the fire of the player-interviewer tussle of 1925, but appears so far to be holding his own.

In the tall Quaker observers see the outstanding example of individual superiority over organized force.

The chief trouble now days seems to be that amateur codes of a generation ago do not fit the modern situation.

New Record Made by Tank Stars in West

Seattle, Wash., July 30.—(AP)—Two records were broken yesterday in the 440 yard breast stroke and the 100 yard free style events at the Amateur Athletic Union National swimming and diving championship contests.

Robert Skelton, of the Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago, set a new record in the 440 yards breast stroke for men, 6:30.2 minutes compared with 6:56 minutes which he set himself in 1921.

Neva Brownfield, of Crystal Pool, Seattle, hung up a new northwest record for the 100 yard breast stroke for women, 1:31.4. The previous mark 1:31.8 was set by Madeline Pless at Tacoma in 1923.

Louis Murfin, youthful Portland aquatic star, swam the 50 yards free style for women in 28.2. Officials are checking to see whether this is worlds record.

Mrs. Mallory Wins Way to Semi-Final Rounds

Seabright, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Mollie Mallory of New York advanced to the semi-final round of the women's singles in the Seabright tennis tournament today defeating Miss Molly Thayer of Philadelphia 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Calif., also won her way into the semi-finals by defeating Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J. 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

SLUGGERS RESCUE
SENATOR PITCHERS
BY STAGING RALLYAs Result They Keep Pace
With Mackmen; Pirates Gaining

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Washington's batsmen have come to the aid of their veteran pitchers. With a four run rally in the eighth, the champions yesterday outscored Chicago thereby keeping pace with the leading Athletics of the American League.

First Zachary, then Marberry, then Johnson went to the mound for the Senators, during the battle and Johnson was effective, allowing one hit in two innings and gaining credit for his 8½ victory, while Urban Faber, who relieved Blankenship suffered the defeat.

Philadelphia bats were busy and kept Ty Cobb and the other Tiger outfielders on the run after 16 safe blows which counted ten tallies. The Tigers could muster only two scores although they sent forth 13 singles.

Slam Harris kept the same number of base runners away from home.

Ernie Johnson's homer in New York was the day's individual feature. Injuries had compelled Huggins to realign his men until Bob Meusel came in from left field to play third base and Johnson was playing short in place of Wanninger. The Yanks and the Browns struggled for 12 innings until Johnson sent his four base punch into the right field stands. For the 15th time this season the Yanks have won two games and only two, in succession, since they stepped into Sizer's shoes at first base when the manager was called to Barboursville, Ohio, by the death of tack that humbled the Red Sox, 10-5.

Pittsburgh added a full game to its advantage in the National League, by conquering the Braves for the third straight time 8½ while the second place Giants lost a pitcher's battle 4-2 to Sheriff Blake of the Cubs. A home run by Gabby Hartnett counted heavily. Seven runs in the fifth inning gave the Pirates a long margin.

Four Brooklyn pitchers had a torrid day in St. Louis and although their teammates registered 15 hits, one more than the opposition total, they failed to hold the Cardinals in check. Smith and Sherdel hit homers.

Cincinnati recorded its fifth straight victory by overcoming the Phillies 9-5 in a free hitting contest. Doubles were numerous. Pinelli and Harp gave each getting two.

The Reds chalked up their fifth consecutive victory by trimming the Phillies.

One big inning, the fifth, gave the Pirates seven runs and enabled them to make it three in a row from the Braves.

As evidence of Slim Harris's effectiveness, 12 Tigers were left stranded on the bases.

The Indians took a fancy to Howard Ehmke's pitching, each connecting safely. Pitcher Miller turned in three hits, one a triple, in four times at bat.

New Haven, Conn.—An estate valued at $326,626 was left by Walter Camp, Yale's famous athletic advisor.

Newark, N. J.—Hugh Gartland, manager of Bob Fitzsimmons, heavy weight, son of the late heavyweight champion, said he had received an offer of $10,000 from Fitzsimmons to meet Gene Tunney. American lightweight champion.

The annual profit of the Suez canal is now $15,000,000.

The WELL DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligations Of Every Situation

Your Golf Get-Up

Human crustaceans, embedded in their little shells, miss many styles which are not only good-looking, but which add appreciably to creature comfort and to the enjoyment of one's favorite sport. Thus, you are well repaid to follow the fashions in a general and rational way. No one is expected to wear everything he sees pictured and described, any more than that he is expected to eat everything that is listed on a bill-of-fare. Adopt what you like; avoid what you don't like. All styles are not becoming to all men. Investigate. Discriminate. The Well-Dressed Man is not the who pursues every will-o'-the-wisp of the latest thing or the "awfully swaggy," but the one who has the selective sense to know what he looks best in. Always be mindful that the mode must be subordinated to the man; that good style is good taste; that the right thing on the wrong wearer is just as wrong as the wrong thing on the right wearer.

In sporting clothes particularly many men are very apt to trail others, as geese upon the village green, regardless of whether a style is becoming or not. Take golf knickers. Your height and build should determine their width and overhang. Balloon-like knickers upon the short, thickest figure are a tragedy, when they are not a comedy or downright burlesque.

Indeed, there is already a well-defined reaction away from the exaggerated cut of recent months. Some knickers are snigger and straight, like those pictured in the accompanying sketch. They have more shapely lines. They do not flap around the legs. They are better proportioned to the stature of the average man. It is easier to get properly fitting trousers than correctly cut knickers. Much more care should be given to their selection and it should be realized that the sportsman, far more than the townsman, is on exhibition.

The knickers of Irish, Scotch or Belgian linen, illustrated here, show conservative style. They drape properly, that is, with all the weight on the hips and with a snugly drawn waistline. White and so-called oyster and oatmeal shades, either plain or plaid, are in favor. The patch-pocket shirt, also sketched, with wristband cuffs is a spruce and sportsmanlike garment. The long-point collar, the trim bow-knot tie and the gayly striped web belt are all beyond cavil.

The RED RAIN MYSTERY

by HEADON HILL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SAMUEL HONEYBUN, English countryman, is suspected of the murder of

SIR FRANCIS LATHROP, private detective employed by Margaret, daughter of the murdered man. But Inspector Roake suspects

SIR GUY LATHROP, Margaret's betrothed.

ADELA LARKIN assists Klyne in obtaining evidence from Wilmot, called Monkey Face. She is imprisoned by Monkey Face and is forced to write a decoy letter to Klyne.

But as Wilmot is about to drop the letter in the post box it is snatched from him by an unseen hand. He returns to the cave where the girl is in captivity. As he enters she asks "Posted the letter?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"No, missy," he replied. "The letter is not in the post."

Some devil came along and pinched it out of my hand as I was about to drop it in the box."

Adela's face yielded no secrets to the searching gaze fixed upon it. She was quite alive to the interpretation put upon her transient smile, and she saw the importance of not permitting any more thought-reading.

Nor was she much cast down by the abstraction of the letter and the dismay it had evidently brought to the dictator of the letter. For Adela did not account for the "pinching" by the vagaries of some chance-mot plunderer, but by the deep design of someone hostile to Wilmot.

And there was only one man she knew of hostile to Wilmot who was also capable of deep designs. If the letter had fallen into his hands all might yet be well.

A moment later she had reason to hope that her surmise was correct and that the letter-snatcher she had in mind would not be long in coming.

Wilmot drew a knife, cut her bonds and hauled her to her feet. "Dance for me, dear," he ordered.

"I will, when I can move my limbs," came the answer with unexpected complacency. "At present I am too stiff for anything."

The knots he had tied rendered the plea for delay reasonable, and the wretch watched the girl gloatingly as she regained suppleness by massaging her legs and working her arms in a graceful calisthenic exercise.

Then suddenly she began to dance, at first swaying her body slowly sideways, but quickly changing the step to a rapid gyrations which at brief intervals turned her back towards her delighted audience. But on facing him again after the third turn-about she halted in her tracks and Wilmot found himself staring into the muzzle of a dainty revolver.

"Put up your hands," said Miss Larkin.

"We have had enough of this," she said. "You will keep your hands above your head and walk out of the shelter, proceeding to the police-station. I shall walk behind you and I will blow out your brains if you show any signs of playing the fool."

"Right you are, missy," whined Wilmot. "Any port in a storm. You have got me on toast, and I shan't play the fool."

From his point of view he certainly didn't. Holding his hands high, he made for the door, but half way to it he swung his left arm down and knocked the lamp off the table, plunging the place into darkness.

Whipping round like a wild cat, he had the girl in his arms, and as she was borne to the ground with his feet beneath her cheek she sobbed as if her heart would break.

Lord Bilpeter's trudge to Hangman's Heath was without result. He found that desolate spot unfrequented except by rabbits, and he trudged back to the inn in bad humor with himself and all the world. To have to wait till six o'clock on the following afternoon to keep the appointment which he felt sure had been panned by Adela under compulsion was more than he could stand. The obvious thing to do was to ascertain something about the latest known movements of Miss Larkin. She was capable of playing practical jokes and practical jokes were missing at all. He sent for the land-lord.

"Look here," he said. "I have to go out again, but I am expecting Inspector Roake. If he arrives before I return ask him to follow me to the Rectory, and tell him I said things were moving."

The land-lord gave the required assurance and the gentleman vouched for by Sir Trevor Hardman of the C. I. D. walked down to the Rectory and rang the front door bell. The summons was answered by the Rectory in person.

"They have all gone to bed," said Mr. Larkin in a tone of mild protest. He seemed dazed or sleepy.

"Miss Larkin gone to bed?" demanded the visitor sternly.

"I was referring to the servants," replied the clergyman. "No, I do not quite know about my daughter. As a matter of fact she is out somewhere. I am rather worried about her. She wasn't at home for dinner."

The visitor, who had already provided against contingencies by putting his foot across the threshold, stepped coolly into the hall. The Rectory, recognizing him, uttered a little squeal.

"Lord Bilpeter?"

"For a few days," responded the other calmly. "Now, Mr. Larkin, shut that door and take me where we can talk. Your daughter is in grievous peril and I must have your aid in succoring her. It may conduce to frankness on your part if I tell you that the game is up. I have traced your connection with what is called the red rain mystery, and the connivance of your brother-in-law, Mr. Silas Stampage of Ruxton."

"My God!" murmured Mr. Larkin, leading the way to the study.

"If you had served your God as you have served a pack of murdering villains you would not have to fear for your daughter's honor or life—probably both," was the grim retort. "Read that."

The sheet torn from Wilmot's pad, and intercepted by its rightful owner, fluttered like an autumn leaf in the parson's quaking fingers. He handed it back after perusal with another appeal to a Maker who ought to have been thoroughly ashamed of making him.

"Every Sunday in church," proceeded the visitor inexorably, "you mouth the words, 'When the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness and does not find his wickedness, and I have no doubt that he is using Miss Adela as an instrument for revenging himself on me. That letter was meant to lure me to Hangman's Heath tomorrow evening. He couldn't make it sooner, because if the letter had gone through the post I should not have got it in time. By a stroke of luck I got hold of it to night and am prepared for instant action—if I only knew where to begin.'"

"Would you let me see that letter again?" Mr. Larkin whimpered.

"Adela is nothing if not resourceful. If she guessed the man's purpose she may have devised a means of conveying information."

(Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Wilmot, fighting for an idea that might enable him to break down the girl's guard, and Adela prepared to counter any devilry he might devise. At the slightest sign of movement she would shoot him, but she was sustained by the hope that the man of deep designs would arrive before she had to sell her hands with this foul creature's blood.

For three long hours neither of them stirred from the positions assumed when Adela leveled her revolver. She was beginning to despair of the letter having reached its addressee, or of his having been able to read the cipher message she had interpolated. What was to be the end of the present impasse if he did not come she could not foresee. She could not stand there aiming a pistol indefinitely. She would have to have food and drink or faint from exhaustion.

Pondering this, the question occurred to her: Why remain there at all? Why not march the delinquent to the police-station in the village at the point of her pistol and charge him with assaulting her? The pleasure of the prospect was reflected in her eyes, and she ought to have been warned that its reaction on her enemy had tensed his muscles and prepared him for action.

"We have had enough of this," she said. "You will keep your hands above your head and walk out of the shelter, proceeding to the police-station. I shall walk behind you and I will blow out your brains if you show any signs of playing the fool."

"Right you are, missy," whined Wilmot. "Any port in a storm. You have got me on toast, and I shan't play the fool."

From his point of view he certainly didn't. Holding his hands high, he made for the door, but half way to it he swung his left arm down and knocked the lamp off the table, plunging the place into darkness.

district are shoes, mining tools, food and metal products, brooms, boxes, chemicals, pipe organs, stokers, concrete blocks, rugs and farm products including butter, cheese and vinegar.

Alton proper stands on a bluff. Hills 300 feet high overlook the Mississippi. It is one of the most beautiful spots in the west for home building. A hundred years ago, when the city was started, the Missouri river flowed into the Mississippi opposite the town site.

In the hundred years its mouth has steadily moved southward, building up its northern bank. Today its mouth is seven and a half miles down stream.

On the "bottoms" to the south of Alton and almost at its very edge, is Wood River and Roxana. Here is one of the nation's great petroleum refining centers. Standard has a great plant there and Roxana another. A smaller refinery is operated by the lesser known White Star Refining company.

Oil brought in by the Prairie Pipe Line company from the Midcontinent fields. The Ozark Pipe Line company has another big line. The Sinclair Pipe Line company, bringing oil from Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Wyoming, enters the district. It can feed the Wood River plants and also extend across the state to the Sinclair Refining Company plant at East Chicago and deliver oil to the Standard of Indiana, plant at Whiting, just out of Chicago.

The Ohio Pipe Line company connects Wood River with the fields in Southeastern Illinois. The Prairie Line extends eastward from Wood River to the Atlantic coast, chief terminal Bayonne, N. J. Wood River is the greatest oil pipe line center east of the Mississippi or north of Tulsa.

There is history and romance in the Alton district. When Father Marquette, first white man to foot down the Mississippi, passed this site in 1673 he wrote in his records that on the stone bluffs he saw pictures of strange monsters painted.

Among them was the Plasa Bird—pronounced Plea-saw. He described it as a weird winged creature, human-headed, with the horns of a deer, teeth of a tiger, claws of an eagle, body of a giant lizard and tail of a snake and a prong on the end. Some years ago the Plasa Bird was quarried away. Lately it has been restored on a cliff, hundred feet or so from its original abode, by Boy Scouts.

Alton's first settler was John Baptiste Cardinal who built him a loose rock house in 1783. He was carried away by Indians. Col. Rufus Easton platted the town in 1815 and named it for a son.

The city early became an educational center, Shurtleff college, claimed to be the oldest existing institution of learning in the Mississippi valley, being founded in 1827. Monticello Seminary followed in 1835; Ursuline Academy in 1839.

Buried on a hill above the business district of the city lies Elijah P. Lovejoy, Abolitionist Editor, murdered by a mob in 1837. He is the great, outstanding martyr of the war against slavery. Some say his death convulsed the nation in the wave of feeling that brought on the Civil War.

A little stone marks the spot where he lies. On it, in Latin, is an inscription which, translated, says: "Here lies Lovejoy. Spare now the dead." His friends feared to do or say more at the time. In later years, on a hill-top nearby, Alton and the State of Illinois have built a more worthy monument which tells his story and bears his immortal words:

"I have sworn eternal opposition to slavery and by the blessing of God will never turn back."

Revelation after the mob-murder of Lovejoy was such that never since has any man lost his life in the county by execution without the due process of law. It was Alton's last mob.

Alton, active in state building and progress, will have a display of its goods and tell its story at the Illinois Products Exposition, to be held

FOREST FIRES IN ILLINOIS BURNED MANY RICH ACRES

210,645 Acres of Timber Destroyed in Fiscal Year

Washington—Nearly 700 forest fires swept 210,645 acres of public and private lands in Illinois last year, according to a report just compiled by the forest service of the United States department of labor.

The actual money damage was $204,653, exclusive of damage to young growth, water-shed protection, wild life and recreational facilities. The intangible loss, it is asserted by department officials, was much larger than the actual loss.

This is the highest rate recorded for Illinois as respects forest destruction in many years, says federal officials.

Greatly Increased Damage.

The number of fires increased nearly a fourth over the figure for 1923 and the damage was nearly seven times that sustained in the preceding year. The area visited by fires in 1924 was more than double the number of acres burned over in 1923.

It is shown by the departments report that notwithstanding the supervision of the state and federal governments there was a large increase in timber destruction in Illinois. In 1923 the value of timber that was burned was estimated to have had a value of $60,217, while last year the loss of timber was estimated at $133,202.

During the past nine years the annual timber loss resulting from forest fires averaged $45,156, and it is thus pointed out that last year Illinois far overstepped all preceding records.

Locomotives Cause Many.

Last year there were 112 fires resulting from sparks from locomotives, compared with 100 fires due to the same cause in 1923. Railroads operating through the wooded sections of Illinois are generally equipped with fire screens, the use of which will ultimately eliminate the railroad menace to the forests, declare federal officials.

In 1923 campers were responsible for 87 fires, while last year their black mark was increased to 203. Careless smokers caused 82 fires by dropping lighted cigars and cigarettes into leaves, which was an increase of 50 per cent over 1923.

The incendiary, despite the vigilance of forest guards, continues to wreak destruction to prairie forests, 74 fires having been traced to his wantonness. This is a decrease of 21 from the preceding year, but the number of incendiary fires in 1924 was in excess of those reported for years earlier than 1922.

Federal officials declare that progress will be made in reducing fires originated from locomotive sparks and from the carelessness of campers and smokers, but they regard the incendiary as a serious problem that so far has baffled treatment.

Public Opinion as Weapon.

Ordinarily fires that have been deliberately started in districts remote from settled communities and the ensuing loss is generally heavy because much virgin timber is destroyed.

"The greatest single agency with which to combat forest fires," says Colonel William B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, "is public opinion. No thoughtful citizen of Illinois can read the 1924 figures without coming to the conclusion that the fight against forest fires is a personal fight. The federal and state governments are doing their utmost with the funds and equipment allotted them. It is high time that a more effective weapon is placed at their disposal, and that weapon is an outraged public opinion."

Photographer's Airplane Wrecked: He "Carries On"

Corbin, Ky., July 29—(AP)—His airplane wrecked beyond repair after striking the top of a tree and crashing against a fence post last night, Clarence Runey, a photographer and motion picture cameraman, hastening to Cincinnati from Dayton, Tenn., with pictures of the Bryan funeral services, hurried to a taxicab station and with four boxes of pictures continued his journey.

An aquatic insect, known as the water strider, actually runs on the surface of the water.
